Once upon a time, there was a poet who wrote a book about Provence, titled La cuisine Provençale de tradition populaire [Provençal cuisine of popular tradition]. We dedicate all of our menus to the author.

In reminding us that any cuisine worthy of its name is always the expression of a well-defined area, René Jouveau knew how to inspire us, guide us and remind us that Provence is a poor country where splendour exalts simplicity and greatness.

“Provençale cuisine is like a great lady who, through extreme vanity, never takes her apron off. Cooking is an essential part of our lives that gives us the pleasure of sharing at our table”.

As there is no better meat or vegetable connoisseur than a farmer or a gardener, no greater game or fish enthusiast than a hunter or a fisherman, we'd like to thank those who we couldn't work without; Olivier Bardoux, Madame Fleury, Le Do-main de Jasson and all of the others that we cannot mention here.
